From the "Alta California,"] ALOHA, KALAKAUA

The King's last day in San Francisco The departure of King Kalakana on the Unrted States war steamer Pensacola, for Honolulu, the capital of his Kingdom, took place late yesterday. At 11 a. M., the King accompanied by his suite, Mrs. B. Holladay, Jr., Miss Cole, the daughter of ex-Senator Cole, Consul Severance and Vice-Consul J. S. Bacon, of the Hawaiian Government, Japanese Consul Mr. Brooks, Samoi Takabi, Japanese Representative, B. Holladay Jr., Lieutenant W. H. Whiting, and a representative of the Alla, took carriages at the ladies' entrance of the Grand Hotel, and were driven rapidly down to the P. M. S. S. Co.'s dock, and went on board the magnificent steamer City of Peking. Assembled on the deck was a select number of ladies and gentlemen of the first families of our city, who had come to wish His Majesty " GOOD BYE AND A PROSPEROUS YOYAGE."

The King paid a brief visit to the elegant cabins, viewed the magnificent machinery and different "poarters," and returned on deck, where the party were invited to the bijou caben, abaft the social ball. Champagoe was opened and with an 'Aloha" the health of the King was drunk. Captain Cox, the Agent of the Pacific Mail teamship Company, made a brief speech, wishng His Majesty a pleasant return-voyage to his Island Kingdom, and stating that if he should postpone his departure on the Pensacola be hoped he would take passage down on the City of Peking, which was at his disposal. A member of the suite here approached the King, and handing him a note through Consul Severance, presented him with a beautiful bouquet of camelias and "lorget-me-nots," with a large gilded basket filled with the same flowers, together with ivycreepers, beliotropes and rosemaries. At the starboard gangway of the Peking were three heatenants in full dress uniform from the Pensacola, who now received the King and escorted him to the launches of the steamer. The party embarked in three of them, and were rapidly rowed out to the war vessel. The Pensacola had all her ports open with her heavy guns pointing out, her yards manned, and a magnificent draping of flags pending from end to end of the vessel, the Hawaiian ensign and the Stars and Stripes holding equal posts of honor. The King's boat reached the gangway, and with a light step His Mujesty hastened on board, was received by Admiral Almy and the officers of the staff and line of the Pensacola. As his foot touched the quarter deck the cannons began to belch forth a salute of twenty-one guns, the colors were dipped, the band played the national anthem, and the crowd cheered. Major-General Schofield shortly after came on board with his staff, and was welcomed by the King. The military and naval officers were in full dress. There was a large number of ladies and gentlemen on board who came to witness the final departure. The Pacific Mail Steamship Company's dock and the adjacent wharves were now observed to be crowded with people, while in the bay in close proximity to the vessel lay numberless small boats filled with curious spectators. The visitors now dispersed themselves throughout the ship, while the King with a few of his most intimate friends retired to the cabin. which had been prepared especially for his use on the trip down. Among the many ornaments was an elegant semi-circle of metal entwined with ceived. M., the two last boat loads, towed by the steam launch, were taken to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's City of Peking, and the passengers, passing across her, landed on the dock. The King and Governors Kapena and Dominis stood at the gangway as the last boats left the war steamer and waved adies with their handkerchiefs to San Francisco she was found filled with people who wished to one of the finest steamers that has ever visited he claims his discharge reads as follows : our waters. It is evident that by this section it was in- B. H. Lyons' Compound tended to place the offense of smuggling in some degree within the jurisdiction of the Police Court; but there is no case of smuggling specified in the Statute in which the floe is limited to $500; the only clause which affixes a penalty being that in the first Section of Chapter 70 of the Penal Code, which enacts that all persons deemed guilty of the misdemennor of smuggling on conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than one thousand dollars." So that if the argument of the counsel for defendant should prevail, the Police Court would be diverted of all jurisdiction, which is obviously what the Legislature did nor intend. We think therefore that the proper construction of the Statute is, that the Police and District Justices have authority to bear all cases of this nature, and when they shall think that the offense committed is worthy of a fine not exceeding $500, they have the au thority to impose it. But if they shall think the offense committed worthy of a fine greater than $500, they must commit for trial.

As regards the three further points of objection, it is sufficient to my that neither the affida vit upon which the warrant to search for the suspected goods was issued, nor the warrant itself were before the Police Court in this case. Th issue was solely the guilt or innocence of the prisoner on the alleged charge of smuggling, and the alleged irregularity in making the seizure could not have been inquired into by the magis-The questions raised as to the proper method
